Java is the.3MyClass.myMethod() cannot be resolved or is not a field I am starting to use the Android framework and I am having a lot of trouble. In my AndroidManifest, I set my AndroidManifest to access the simple class I wrote a couple of days ago, but it can't seem to access it. I am trying to run the simple class, and it is not recognizing my simple class name. I'm sure I'm doing something really dumb, but I don't know what. I've never programmed before, so I just do. Is there any suggestion or help you can give me? You can also set as much data (attributes) in xml as you want to do in the Java-File. If you want to set all attributes in the Class itself you can access the attributes with the access-directories. You can also set as much data (attributes) in xml as you want to do in the Java-File. If you want to set all attributes in the Class itself you can access the attributes with the access-directories. TOTALLY understand that now, but I didn't have the understanding that I had to use the "data" folders. I thought I had to. So when you say "all attributes", what I'm asking is how I would go about declaring all the attributes in the class, so that I don't have to type them in every single time I call a method. Like if it was a phone that had a touchscreen and I had to have an attribute for the size of it, so that I could program it in the class that I made up. It was just a little homework assignment I had for the
