There are a number of reasons to choose Photoshop Elements over the other photo editors. One of them is that, although Elements has fewer features and its interface is more basic, it is actually easier to learn. For the money, Elements is better value than Adobe Photoshop. Adobe Photoshop comes with many more bells and whistles and is probably better suited to professional photographers. But Photoshop Elements on the other hand is geared for hobbyists and those who simply want to get better images from their digital photo files. You can spend less on Photoshop Elements, but you'll actually get more out of it. Adobe Photoshop is one of the best software for professional editing and retouching of all photos. You can adjust brightness, contrast, shadows, highlights, and more during editing in Photoshop as you can only do with Photoshop. It takes a long time before knowing the logic of working with Photoshop as it takes many steps to obtain your goal. So if you want to edit your photos then we highly recommend you to use Photoshop. It requires manual effort, time and skill, and hence it costs money.
